SWE07749 CLASSICAL GUITAR WEEKEND (Advanced Ensemble)

Tutor: VINCENT LINDSEY-CLARK

Dates: WEEKEND FRIDAY 30 MARCH – SUNDAY 1 APRIL

ABOUT YOUR COURSE:

This new weekend course is for classical guitarists who wish to experience the enjoyment of playing in an ensemble, develop their technique and learn from performing their solo music in repertoire classes.

Andrew Gough will be running a concurrent course for the intermediate ensemble players.

(Please note that this weekend is not suitable for beginners.)

This course includes many aspects that are always so popular at the annual International Classical Guitar Summer School held in August at West Dean. You will receive tuition from both of this classical guitar weekend's tutors, but will be assigned to a specific ensemble group according to your grade level; Andrew Gough (intermediate ensemble, Grades 2-5) and Vincent Lindsey-Clark (advanced ensemble, Grades 6-8+). The schedule will include warm-up/technique classes, repertoire classes (each student will be allocated an individual time to perform and discuss their solo repertoire with the tutor and fellow students), ensemble rehearsals, general question and answer sessions, and an informal student concert platform. The course concludes on the Sunday afternoon with a performance of the ensemble works studied.

Up to nine students per ensemble group will be allocated.

Please contact Andrew Gough by email: classicalguitarfestival@gmail.com or by mobile telephone 07702 742418 so he can finalise plans for the weekend timetable. He will be given your contact details if he doesn't hear from you; you'll also need to return the attached form.

LEVEL: ADVANCED (GRADES 6-8+)

ABOUT YOUR TUTORS:

Vincent Lindsey-Clark is a renowned guitarist composer whose music is played worldwide. Member of the Segovia Trio and the Modern Guitar Trio. He is also an experienced tutor and ensemble coach. He teaches at Southampton University, London's Centre for Young Musicians and Eton College. He has also taught at summer schools and festivals around the world including Hong Kong, Sydney Australia and Taranaki New Zealand.

Vincent has recorded 8 CDs and his music is performed by world renowned players such as Berta Rojas, David Russell, Amanda Cook, The English Guitar Quartet, David Owen Norris as well as his own performances of his works. His compositions for students are very popular and feature heavily on YouTube. He is published in Canada by Les Productions d'Oz and in the UK by his own publishing company Montague Music Publishing. Recently his second guitar concerto was performed by his student Victor Matthews at Eton College to critical acclaim.

Andrew Gough is head of guitar at the Birmingham Conservatoire Junior Department and teaches at The Blue Coat School and King Edward's School, Birmingham. He has given many solo recitals and enjoys working in various ensembles including a duo with his wife, pianist Sarah Daniels. Andrew has regularly performed guitar concerti with orchestras in England and has been an orchestral guitarist with the CBSO and RSC. In 2009 Andrew founded the Central England Guitar Ensemble for advanced classical guitarists based in the Midlands. He has recorded three CDs, including Diffusion a surround-sound and stereo double album of works by Steve Reich, Gerald Garcia and David Carroll. Andrew is also the director of The International Classical Guitar Festival and Summer School here at West Dean College. www.classicalguitar.org.uk
