

Day 10.

The last for a while.

Write a story. Everything you have done up to now equips you to do this. You have POV, character, conflict, action and dialogue.

Arguably, there are three ways to think about a story.

1. A series of events that form a narrative of cause and effect.
2. Making meaning from a moment
3. A combination of those two.

The most intriguing definition of a short story I ever heard was something like:

‘If a novel invites us into another world a short story is like being kissed in the dark by a stranger’

Let us know how you get on.
